

Tuesday, July 25, 2006;
TO: Advanced Scientific, LLC.

Dear Sir:

I wanted to take a few minutes and relate to you an interesting experience with your product OcluVet.

Remington is a 14-year-old, white, 10-pound Havanese. He had always been very active, happy go-lucky and a great joy to his family. However, about a year ago, he started slowing down, sleeping much of the day and ignoring people who entered the room.

We took him to the vet and were informed his hearing was weakening and cataracts were forming due to the fact he was getting up in years. So, per the vet, there was not much we could do or much to worry about. This is considered normal.

After hearing of your product we purchased it from our vet who got it from his normal supplier and after using it for a just few weeks, things took a remarkable change. Not only did the "grayness" of the cataracts begin to disappear, but also Remi has become more animated, energetic and involved again with our family.

We realize now that the inability to see clearly can lead an animal, just like a human, to "get into a shell" and disassociate with family.

I write this because I felt that you should be aware that your product has some important social positive side effects besides just the clearing of the cataracts.

We got our Remi back!

Best of Luck and Success.

Glen Hammer
Atlanta, Ga.